Ms. Hesse:

I support the revised proposed Final Judgment in the U.S. v. Microsoft case. This lengthy litigation has cost more than $35 million. Enough is enough.

The parties worked very hard to reach this agreement, which has the benefit of taking effect immediately rather than months or years from now.

The terms of the settlement are fair to the computer users and consumers of America, on whose behalf the lawsuit was allegedly filed.

This case was supposedly brought on behalf of American consumers. We have paid the price of litigation through our taxes. This settlement is in the public interest. I urge the DOJ to submit the revised proposed Final Judgment to the U.S. District Court without change.

Sincerely,

Robert Lloyd
